"...so you want a piece of me? only a piece, because you don't need the totality?
sure, cut off what you need, from me lying on that stainless steel table, just as if i was a labrat and you the pathologist...run away from the horror, run and clench your wirehanger fist, hack your life away until you can't consume anymore, run away from the ruins that your life has become...and whose fault is it? is it because mechanization has taken control? because others force their calm upon you? because you feel as if your body flakes away like ash, while everyone else seems like a fucking monolith? because nature itself looks like they've stitched prosthetics onto everything, onto everyone, all you hate, all you love? is already the pathology brewing in your heart, boiling to the point where the black vomit wrenches thee, when autolysis sets in? to the point when you wish you could be a brutalitarian and cleanse the grid, while you absorb life and bleed your purpose, so you can burn the words in the mouths of those you despise? and who are they exactly? do they represent the emperor slug, who crawls ontop of you, screaming and pleading at once, for you to obey and be obeyed? what does it matter, when your submission comes without a prize? life is the great equalizer. souls are thinning out, i can feel it, a woman made of salt licks me where i'm injured most and it burns. souls are thinning out and you can feel it too. make me hurt. make me feel. i voice myself, beat, bass guitar, drone, heaviness, mass, because nothing else is allowed to matter. let us walk beneath this incredibly huge grey cloud above us together. cage to my flesh, silent tomb. join me. i am fragment king. i speak, you listen.

"very groovy, checking it now, the medley is fucking hilarious, but yeah this is some good shit, i'm so glad you've managed to pull all the projects together into the fragment king womb and birth a bastard beast from the furthest nether regions to let the semen fire hydrant cover the planet..."
